The Self-Management Programs listed above ("Program(s)") were originally created by Dr. Kate Lorig, Diana Laurent, and Virginia González at Stanford University to teach patients how to manage their health in the face of challenges to their health.

Stanford-licensed organizations presently conduct training sessions for health care professionals and non- professionals to become Program Leaders. Program Leaders are qualified to guide patients through the Program. Stanford conducts and coordinates onsite and offsite training sessions for health care professionals and non-professionals to become Master Trainers of Program Leaders. A Master Trainer is qualified to train Program Leaders how to guide patients through the Program.

As a certified Master-Trainer, Stanford grants you permission to train Program Leaders in the additional program listed above for health education purposes, subject to the terms and conditions stated in this document, including that:

Leader Training

1. You may conduct Leader Trainings, Cross-Trainings and Update Trainings without coordinating with Stanford. Before you train any group of Leaders in the program listed above, you must ensure that all organizations that employ them (regardless of compensation they may or may not receive) have a Stanford program license. No one may come to a Leader Training, Cross-Training, or Update Training from an organization without a license or as an individual working independently. All licenses must be obtained before training. Guidelines on what is required of you for Leader Trainings are outlined below.
2. There must always be 2 active Master or T-Trainers to conduct Leader Trainings, Cross-Trainings and Update Trainings. See Certification Guidelines for requirements to remain active.
3. There are no Stanford training fees for Leader Trainings. You may charge individuals whom you train only a reasonable cost-reimbursement fee for your training.
4. While you are granted permission to reproduce copies of the program materials for use in your training, Stanford retains ownership of the copyright to the Programs. You agree that all copies of Program materials contain the appropriate copyright proprietary notice, such as "Copyright © 2012, Stanford University", on the title page of the Program manual. Manuals should be printed as provided by Stanford, with the exception of the cover. Your organization may brand the cover.
5. You may not provide organizations that are hosting trainings copies of Leader's or Master Trainer's , Cross-Training, or Update Manuals for reproduction. Stanford provides manuals to organizations once they purchase program licenses or pay applicable training fees.
6. You provide Program training at your own risk. Stanford will not be liable for any damages with respect to any claim by you or any third party on account of your conducting of Program training, your use of the Program(s), or your use of the Program materials, and you will indemnify and hold Stanford University harmless from any claims related to your conducting of Program(s) training, your use of the Program(s), or your use of Program materials.
